skill and esse that leaves nothing to be desired. New to audience and stage, Daly's people were nevertheless apparently as much at home as if native and to the manor born." The Big Bonanza is a big thing of its kind. Devoid of any special dramatic tone, situation or plot such as marks some of Daly's works and secures them place above the dead level of what are called "society plays," it is none the less possessed of interest. Indeed, it is full to overflowing with interest, and keeps the audience on the alert from the first act to the last, eyes and ears intent on the smart sayings and comic doings which makes of it an al-most unrelieved four-act roaring farce. True, much of what is said is old, and much of what is done not new, but they provoke a gener-ous laughing spell, and make for what would otherwise be a tame performance a reputation and a name. There is no room for a display of the higher merits which the company claims. All the situations are farcical; even the love-making which one would expect to find a serious contrast to so much of low comedy is burlesqued in the extreme, and helps to sustain the extravagant picture which abounds in enough that is mirth-provoking to make a dozen old-time farces. All this fun is a result of the cross of two old couple, and

Of the actors, besides him, we individualize Miss Jewett, who, as "Eugenia," gave us a type of the school-girl, society fledgeling that the audience indorsed as all their fancy painted her. Handsome in face, lithe of figure, graceful and easy, she is also mistress of the arts which on the stage count for half the battle. She is destined to become a favorite with our play-goers, and to have occasion to carry with her pleasant remembrances of her Memphis auditors. Miss May Nunely as "Virgie" will also prove a favorite. A contrast in physique and style of beauty, she is in some respects the better actress. affording satisfying glimpses of what he can do in a heavier play. Ringgold, as "Jack Lymer," was very good. A burlesque on physicians and gentlemen, he was truer to Mr. Daly's intent and model than Hardie, but did not fare as well at the kands of the public. Of the rest, it will do to "lump" them, and say that they sustained the princi-pals and helped to keep the sudience in a continuous rear of laughter. To night we are to have the Big Bonanza

THE STEAMER ILLINOIS.

The Blue Ribbon Trip of the Scason-Over One Thousand Passengers During One Trip-The Cheek Line a Success.

The Illinois, our Memphis and Vicksburg packet, arrived yesterday morning at ten o'clock with a large list of passengers and cotton, having registered on the trip three hundred and ninety-four cabin, one hundred and thirty-nine bureau, and five hundred and fifty deck, through passengers. It is with pleasure we notice the continued improvement of this, our legitimate trade, secured through the indefatigable efforts of Captains Mark and George Cheek. Without fear of competition they bravely "fight the battle of the just," and as a consequence, resp the reward of success. The APPEAL has frequently specially noticed the efforts of Mesers. Mark Cheek and Brother to re-establish this trade, and now regard with pleasure its increase. By reason of lack of labor, having only Of the company, it is proper to say at once, that it is admirably balanced, well drilled and plays to a point with a forefuse much cotton and seed lying to refuse much cotton and seed lying upon the banks awaiting shipment. This will probably never happen again, as the cleaned cotton-fields are rapidly returning the labor so much needed by steamboats to Memphis. The Illinois makes close connection at Chicot City with the railroad for Pine Bluff; also with the R. E. Lee for New Orleans and the bends, and with the Parisote line for Yazoo and Tallabatchie rivers. Recollect she leaves every Tuesday evening at five o'clock without fail.

JOSEPH M. TIGHE.

He is Released in Cincinnati on Fifteen Hundred Dollars Bail, and Returns to Plague his Tormentors - Official Investigation.

Our readers will remember that last Friday Mr. Joseph M. Tighe was arrested upon a requisition, and before his attorneys had time to examine into the legality of the papers, was taken by Sheriff Charles Anderson and placed on board the Louisville train to be carried by an agent to Ohio. So hastily was all this done that Mr. Tighe did not even have time to procure his overcost or a change of clothing. Despite this decid-edly sharp trick, Smith, Shaw and Trantham will be disappointed to know that Mr. Tighe will reach here to-day, and be "on hand" to appear against the kidnappers in the Bartlett court, the honesty of whose officials will net fail to reveal the fact that the offense wascommitted within the jurisdiction of that tribunal. Messrs. L. B. Horrigan and Thomas Lowe, attorneys for Mr. Tighe, proceeded to Cincinnati Saturday. His case was brought up before the judge of the court having jurisdic tion of the crime with which he is charged. Despite the great raw-headand-bloody-bones story that Tighe had defrauded a score of creditors, so numerous, indeed, as to make it necessary for Smith, Shaw and Trantham's lawver to write a letter to the Cincinnati Commercial, duly addressed to his creditors, the court evidently dissents as to the enormity of the swindle. We say this because a telegram from Lowe and Horrigan Messrs. "the bail in the Tighe case has been fixed by the court at fifteen hundred dollars, and that he would start from Cincinnati last night for Memphis."
So after all the furore, attempted kidnapping, and subsequent proceedings, the affair is not one-fiftieth as big thing as Smith, Shaw & Co. sought to make the public believe. Alexander M. Smith, the interesting biped who broke down the toll-gate and treated Tighe with so much inhumanity, and who is now indicted for four different crimes by the Bartlett court, met the Obio agent and the prisoner at Milan. Thence the creature who is afraid to return here to the genial companionship of J. J. Smith, James M. Shaw and John Trantham, who, like Alexander, are also indicted, traveled with Tighe to Cin-cinnati. Thus far the disgraceful plans of Smith have not resulted in anything save justice, which it is hoped will be continued until every man, whether agent, principal or adviser to this outrage shall have been punished as they so richly merit. Proceedings will be instituted so as to fully investigate the exact manner of Mr. Tighe's arrest and removal from this city last Friday. The great haste of the affair will be investigated in an action against the persons who are alleged to have acted contrary to custom, law and court-

Last night the following special telegram was received by the APPEAL: CINCINNATI, November 21.—Ball was fixed by the court in Tighe's care at fifteen hundred dollars. The ball was given at once. Tighe was met at Milan by A. M. Smith, who came with him here. Tighe was detained in Louisville all day Saturday to get him in jail here on Sunday, when tail would not be taken. There will be no difficulty in refuting the charges whenever the prosecution is ready for trial. The officers here treated Tighe and his counsel kind-ly and with great consideration; if they

of that the prosecution is prompted by o to extort money, as claimed "ion will receive no aid at motive their hands.
